

Heid Leganger Krogstad

Associate Professor

E-mail: heid.l.krogstad@mf.no

Phone: +47 22596507

Heid Leganger-Krogstad, PhD, is Associate Professor in Philosophy of Religious Education at MF - Norwegian School of Theology in Oslo. She is head of the Masters program for Church Education. Evaluation research on the Educational Reform 2003 in Church of Norway is one her occupations, besides contextual theory in education and presentation of Christian theology in multireligious societies.

Teacher education has been her field since 1980, both in general and subject teacher education. Her research interests are mainly related to religion and education in plural societies, the situation for minorities and contextual didactical theory. She has been involved in work on behalf of the Council of Europe in a project on: The religious dimension of Intercultural education. Her publications is listed at MF's competence catalogue: <http://www.mf.no/index.cfm?id=175216>

In LETRA she will study how learning takes place when 6 year olds take part in congregational work and how this relates to their lifeworld.

